

ANISHINAABE FIRST NATIONS IN THE WAR OF 1812

Alan Ojiig Corbiere, former Executive Director of the Ojibwe Cultural Foundation in M'Chigeng, Manitoulin Island, comes to Toronto to detail his research, including interviews with elders, to uncover the names and experiences of Anishinaabe combatants in the War of 1812 - often left nameless in historical records.

This lecture is presented in partnership with the Native Canadian Centre.

Seating limited to 75 people. RSVP to rostep@toronto.ca.
